Volume 1

Schizophrenia A diagnosis of schizophrenia can be made when two or more prominent symptoms consistent with the illness (e.g., delusions, hallucinations, disorganized speech or behavior, negative symptoms) are present for the better part of a month or more, and substantial social or occupational functioning problems are noted to exist. Narcissistic personality disorder is a mental disorder characterized by an inflated sense of self-importance, lack of empathy, and a great need for admiration. Schizophrenia is a brain disease that interferes with normal brain functioning. It causes affected people to exhibit odd and often highly irrational or disorganized behavior. Because the brain is the organ in the body where thinking, feeling and understanding of the world takes place (where consciousness exists), a brain disease like schizophrenia alters thinking, feeling, understanding and ... Numerous notable people have had some form of mood disorder. This is a list of people accompanied by verifiable sources associating them with bipolar disorder (formerly known as "manic depression") based on their own public statements; this discussion is sometimes tied to the larger topic of creativity and mental illness. In the case of dead people only, individuals with a speculative or ...
